

God's Idioms

j.mcguire
May 14, 2012

Besides the name God, in current and history past, God was known by many names, Allah, Theos, Dios, Sire, Prussa, just to name a few.

For the record, I am that of a believer of God. In writing writings such as this, I find myself at odds as I attempt to not write as I, but as to that for humanity.

For over a half century I had many a question about God that went unanswered, only recently have I realized those answer are found within I.

Rest assured; I do not walk on water unless it is frozen and I definitely cannot part even the waters in my washtub unless one adds a few cases of gelatin. God has given each the capability to adapt and overcome the daily trials and tribulations of life. We just need to seek from within, for that is where the wisdom of God derives.

As written in Idiom's Riddles, God is that God is and we are that we are with Gods power within. I was told this day by one who read one of my writings that I was a prophet and had been touched by God. Each in themselves is a prophet if one teaches and each is touched by God from within. The choice is up to the one. For the most of my life, and I assume many others; have heard many a plea for God to intervene. As we each have God within, God need not arrive for he has always been within and intervention would be that done by the one.

One must learn to learn from the wisdom of God that resides in each. The reading of written words and speaking of these words without knowing is a prelude to understanding, and when that understanding occurs, you will understand the power of God, I did.

If I have offended anyone, I apologize from within.